“ It's been 7 Christmas's with out you by my side. They say it gets easier, but I say like pain management you just get numb to it and just pretend it's all ok. My heart has never healed, and never will. And for those who thought I would move on and date and go on with life, well you were and still are wrong.

I mss you Bobby as much today as the day you were taken from me. ❤️👉💔💔💔💔

“ Well it's almost another 4th of July. I miss Coco who passed July 1st in 22 after you, but miss you even more. I am so tired of everyday missing all the things I loved and lost. I am so ready to join all of these things. I am tired, so tired. And everyone else only thinks of themselves or what they can get from me. 😞

“ Well Bobby I talk to you all the time, but never an answer. So I decided it was again time to say this here and hope for some sign you hear me. 🙄 I miss Ga and all the great times we had. I know GA will never be the same, but I feel closer to you here. And I feel that this is where I need to be so when I pass I will be nearer to you, (and cost less for my cremation/burial, etc), and not cause any extra money out of pocket from others. But all in all I am alone, feel numb and have nothing left on this earth. So I look forward to when we can be together, or just gone from this earth. No one understands and it is always about them. No one really gets all the pain I have been through all these years, it is what they have dealt with, from missing their kids and all their problems and all they have lost. I have had to start over over a dozen times and each time a chunk of my heart has been chipped away each time. The loss of you left in me when all that was said and done I only 1/16 of my heart left. And sad to say that has finally been chipped away. I just hope we can be together some day, somewhere, somehow. But I feel I will just be sent to hell and never see, feel or even know you were apart of me. I'm just lost.

“ Bobby Thanksgiving is here in a few hours. And I still miss you so very much. I miss going hunting and fishing with you so much. Just being with you made me happy and content. I feel so alone and lost. It's like I'm sitting on the side line watching days go by. I try and stay busy with the family but I feel like a stranger and not really wanted. Their lives go on and mine is stagnant. I wish I could hold you one more time and let you know how much I love you. 💔💔💔💔💔

“ Well it is now New Years Eve. And I am still thinking about all the fun times we had. From fishing, hunting, camping and just being together. I feel your presence with me all the time, but it is just not the same as holding you close. But I know that it will not be long that we are together again. I am staying strong for Coco, and after that I will be so ready to join you. I am trying to do all that is right until that time. Please be patient with me as you and I both know that we have to be there for our doggies. After that it will just be us. And hopefully the doggies will be right there by our sides. I love you so much and can not wait until we are able to hug each other again.
